

The M16/AR15 has been the handgun of choice for the U.S. military for quite a while. It is lightweight, accurate and reliable. The military uses the 5.56mm NATO round; the private model uses a.223 round. Plenty of the civilian AR15s can capture both times. The original producer of the AR15 for the army was Armalite which later bought all the rights to the AR15 to Colt. Colt Manufacturing is among the highest quality AR15's in the marketplace. They have been developing the assault rifle for a long time and enhanced this weapon. They ran in to some difficulty with labor strikes and experienced some quality issues in the 1980's.
